Peter, Frank and Jessie always played role playing games at Mr. Smith's mansion. Even when they played board games they used different personalities while they were playing the game. One day a boy named Dan showed up at Mr. Smith's mansion and the teens were more than happy to teach him how to play the games. Unfortunately Peter got mad at the result of one of these games and ran into the street and was hit by a van. The force of the van caused Peter to go into a coma. Peter's Uncle Fredrickson is a computer programmer. He creates a virtual machine which allows the teens to attempt to play a game with Peter while he is still in the coma. Will Peter's mind be able to take it or will the game be too much for him?
