Excerpt from The Genealogy: Of the Ryerson Family in America, 1646-1902

It is most gratifying to be able to state that every facility has been afforded to the writer, in seeking authentic information in the preparation of this work, and to cordially acknowledge the kindness of a number of individuals who have cheerfully assisted him in his investigations, and especially is it due to Dr. John G. Ryerson, from whom the incentive was received and also his kindly patronage. While it would be injudicious to state that the work is accurate in every particular, yet the greater part is verified by family and church records.

The line of inquiry is extended to the males of direct descent, the females being noted only in their births, marriages, or deaths; had the collateral branches been included, the work might have been too voluminous. The record, for the greater part, is brought down to a date sufficiently near, and will enable any interested in the subject to easily trace his lineage.

To assist in studying the record, two columns of figures are given, the first column to each name in succession, and the second column shows where the individual appears at birth, or marriage.
