This is not a story for your mom's book club. This story is for anyone who's ever done crazy s*** for the person they love. It's for anyone who's ever been defriended on Facebook or listened to overly dramatic music while they stare at someone's profile picture. This is for anyone who's ever been hopelessly trapped in the confines of the friend zone, or who has a standard break-up procedure designed to minimize emotional outbursts. This story is for anyone who's ever looked at his college diploma and said, "Thanks, but what do I do now?" It is a story about hope, cyber-stalking, courage, crazy girlfriends and debauchery. But most of all, it's about finding what it really means to be in love. JD Andrews of is an overdramatic, hopelessly-in-love recent graduate, who will have to decide whether he wants his own love story to be a Shakespeare tragedy or a "G" rated fairytale.
